How does SCE engage with the industry trade associations and technical organizations listed in section 5.3.10.2 on page 5-147? (i.e. list of meetings held with such in the past 3 years, examples of lessons shared or learned and how they were applied, etc.)

Response to Question 027 (SCE-43895-L-348):

The accompanying Excel file (WSD-SCE-002 Q.SCE-43895-L-348 Agency Interactions.xlsx) is a summary of key interactions (including, but not limited to, meetings, conferences, workshops, summits, teleconferences, communications, webinars, etc.) with various utility industry trade and technical associations and organizations, including: Energy Storage Alliance (ESA), Electric Power Research Institute (EPRI), Edison Electric Institute (EEI), Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE), Department of Energy's Grid Modernization Laboratory Consortium (GMLC), and Lawrence Livermore National Lab (LLNL).

This list is not exhaustive. There are routine tactical meetings and teleconferences that SCE subject matter experts participate in between the listed interactions and these events that are not centrally tracked and are therefore not included in the attachment. Interactions with the Western Energy Institute (WEI) and National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) were not centrally tracked and individuals that periodically have interactions with these organizations were not available for comment during this data request period.

Additionally, SCE instituted travel restrictions on March 6, 2020 for all SCE employees due to the COVID-19 (coronavirus) outbreak. Non-essential domestic and international business air travel will be restricted until further notice and may impact planned in-person engagements with the subject organizations.
